Re: c with c

Dear a c,

I am writing to express my interest in c's position as a full stack developer. I am a first-year Software Engineering student at Concordia University. My lifelong passion and curiosity for new technologies have led me to participate in numerous hackathons. I am eager to learn and work hard to be a better Software Engineer. I have learned a lot in my first year both at school and on my personal projects and am eager to further develop these skills and put them into practice. I recognize that my persistence and my learning capabilities will be an asset to your team. My dedication to learning more than what's required in the scope of the school curriculum is proof of my engagement to grow as a software developer.

The experience I have acquired academically, during hackathons and on my own personal time have developed my problem-solving skills and have given me the opportunity to work with new programing languages, platforms, and APIs. I can quickly design and deploy progressive web apps on the frontend using HTML, CSS, JavaScript, Bootstrap, and jQuery. I am currently learning React to better my industry knowledge and to give users a flawless experience. I can also design the backend components of a web app using Node.js, PHP and Java. I have worked with a set of API's and hosting platforms such as Twilio, Express.js, Heroku and AWS. I am a resourceful goal-oriented person who can effectively communicate ideas and issues with my team. Furthermore, my knowledge of Git allows me to efficiently work in a collaborative manner. My ability to develop projects with varied teams proves that I can write agile, efficient and quality code. I am constantly developing my skills both at school and during my free time to become a better software developer every day.

c is a company that I would love to work for and share my skills, my positive energy and curiosity. Thank you for reading my cover letter and looking at my resume, I am looking forward to hearing from you for an interview and further discuss what I can bring to the company.

Sincerely,

Jason Botzas-Coluni
